"AS ITHERS SEE US"

A few weeks ago we brought to our readers' attention the rumblings of revolt within the synagogue, the protestations arising within our own ranks relative to Judaism's failure to keep pace with modern scientific progress. In view of these criticisms within it is interesting to note the complaint from without which has recently been levelled at our faith by one of the more erudite and sophisticated of modern minds. Harry Elmer Barnes, noted Professor of History at Smith College, in a sermon, delivered a week or so ago before Rev. Charles Frances Potter's newly formed Humanist Congregation of New York City, devoted a number of striking sentences to an arraignment of contemporary Judaism for its seeming indifference to the modern Weltanschaung and the tendenz of our time. In clear cut, concise, and colorful phrases, he cajoled Israel to "come out of the darkness of the synagogue . . . forget the superstitions and ancient rites of the past (which are but) an evil dream, a compound of fable and forgery . . . come out into the open, into the bright, clear light of the twentieth century." Then, in rather trenchant syllables, he turned upon our rabbis with the caustic indictment "Where are the leaders of Judaism in this crisis? How many rabbis are comparable here to Holmes, to Dietrich, to Dieffenbach, to Dr. Potter? For the most part, they are skulking in the cyclone cellar while the fight against superstition is being waged. What rabbi has examined his faith in the cold, clear light of science and cut off every element of the supernatural? The failure of the Jewish rabbis relentlessly to modernize their creed and worship is driving liberal minded Jews from all religion or into liberal non-Jewish cults."

Now, in the face of such burning words of censure, we presume, that as a rabbi in Israel, we ought to bristle with rage, to rant and rave against this new missionary in our midst, politely to thank him for his counsel and graciously bid him to go to, and mind his own affairs. But strangely enough, our ire is not in the slightest aroused, for we recognize that it were absurd to attribute any ulterior motives to this deeply earnest spirit. It is ridiculous to presume that everyone who essays to criticize our faith is endeavoring to convert us to his own creed or cult, particularly to the ever feared and dreaded Christianity. In the first place, Barnes is as vehement in his denunciation of Christendom as he is fervid in his critique of Jewry. For thus he goes on to assure us that the synthesis which he urges can be, by all means, "under Jewish auspices." All that he asks is that rabbis and religious leaders, likewise congregants themselves, do as much thinking for themselves as is the case among "Jewish leaders elsewhere. (For) In science, in art, literature, commerce, finance, and social service, America and the world are deeply indebted to Jewish genius." Barnes continues but wherefore the failure of the Jewish intellect "to function in application to the reconstruction of its own faith?"

We are afraid that much of what Barnes has said is tragically true. Although he exaggerates somewhat and overlooks the fact that individual rabbis here and there, as well as the Central Conference of American Rabbis, have heroically grappled with the problems of our day, still it must be admitted that for one reason or another they have made small contribution to the religious literature of our day. Aside from a few published sermons, monographs, and tracts, very little has come from their minds, and pens that might lead the layman, the intelligent layman particularly, through the labyrinth of modern skepticism and doubt to a rational and sustaining faith. Where are the works, the books, the essays, the thoughtful articles by American rabbis? Some few might be educed. But not enough to keep pace with the formidable list of erstwhile Christians mentioned by Barnes. Perhaps the demands made on our rabbis are so numerous as to preclude scholarly work or profound thought. Perhaps they are not interested in what, after all, are theological problems. Perhaps Dr. Barnes himself is a bit out of date in being so concerned about ultimates. Perhaps we rabbis have become so modern that, although still mouthing old fashioned phrases, we are concerned primarily with human and social problems. Perhaps, although theoretically, still theistic in the orthodox sense of that word, practically, we are humanistic in its most liberal connotation. At least, we hope that this latter cause is responsible for our conspicuous silence. Whatever the reason, we cannot but feel that Dr. Barnes, although somewhat hyperbolic in his conclusions, was justified in his friendly criticism. The hour has struck when we Jews can no longer skulk in our cellars, but when we must come out into the open, courageously to answer the challenge of our time, and to define clearly, and without ambiguity, the position of liberal Judaism upon such vital subjects as God, Man, Immortality and a host of other concepts, that we might once again attract to the synagogue the modern intellectuals who, undoubtedly, as Dr. Barnes correctly stated, are being driven into non-Jewish cults or away from religion altogether. Harry Elmer Barnes merits a reply from every rabbi in the American pulpit today.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL

The official statement issued by the International Nickel Co. of Canada for the nine months ended September 30, 1929, shows net profits of the company and its subsidiary companies amounted to $16,865,753, being equivalent to $1.11 a share on the common stock after allowing preferred dividend. This figure includes the earnings from the Mond Nickel Company, while the profits for the same period in 1928, amounting to $8,304,771, did not include the Mond figures. During the nine months of 1929, in which the Mond figures were included, net profits for the quarter ending September 30, 1929, were $5,627,577, compared to $5,647,984 in the quarter ending June 30 and $5,590,191 in the quarter ending March 31.

MONTREAL COTTONS

Conclusion of the deal between Beauharnois Power Corporation and Montreal Cotton Company whereby the former takes over the latter's water rights at Valleyfield has an important bearing upon the finances of the latter company. Though no price is mentioned, it was reported a couple of months ago that an offer of $2,000,000 had been made. It is possible that Montreal Cotton transferred its rights in exchange for the securities of Beauharnois, but, in any event, it stands to benefit largely from the deal.

National Breweries to Export Stock and Increase Dividend

IT has been the general belief that due to market conditions, the expected split in National Breweries would be postponed. It is understood, however, from quarters close to the management that the split will be consummated by the end of this month or early in December. The basis of the split will, it is indicated, be 3 for 1 and a dividend of $2. a share will be inaugurated on the new stock. This will be equivalent to $6. a share on the present issue and represents an increase of $2. a share.

Business and earnings of the company this year have been such that directors will be able to increase the dividend and still leave a substantial portion of earnings to be ploughed back into surplus, the report for the year being expected to show around $10. a share on the common stock now outstanding.

Domestic sales have been at a record peak due to a seasonably summer and unusually mild fall; a new record peak in tourist traffic and prosperous labor conditions resulting from the heavy volume of building construction and general industrial activity. Business for the early future gives promise of expanding still further with big new projects in sight-notably the big terminal development for Montreal.

It is a notable fact that National Breweries sales in Ontario are exceeded by only one brewing company in that province.

Notwithstanding substantial plant additions and improvements during the current year, the company will close the period with a further expansion in its already strong working capital and balance sheet position.

IMPERIAL TOBACCO

Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada's annual report, covering the year ended September 30, will be made available in a week or two. It should show a substantial increase in both gross and net profits. Demand for the company's products has been greater, primarily due to increased consumption and the slowing down of smuggling. This latter activity has, in the past, cut into Canadian business, but the customs department has been more active in putting a check to smuggling.

MASSEY HARRIS

So far as can be judged in advance of the close of the fiscal year and the final audit, the net profit of Massey Harris for the current year, after bond interest and taxes, but before preferred dividends, will be in the neighborhood of $1,400,000. These figures, however, are not in any sense official and are arrived at merely on the assumption that, if the directors continue the present common dividend of $3, the profit per share will not be less than $2.50.

FOUNDATION CO.

Three new contracts totalling in all something like $5,000,000 are in sight for Foundation Company of Canada, it is reported to The Financial Post. Added to what the company already has on its books in the way of unfinished orders, this would make a total of between $12,000,000 and $14,000,000 of business ahead of the company.

JAMAICA PUBLIC SERVICE

There is every indication that earnings of Jamaica Public Service, Limited, for the year ending December 31 will show an increase over those of 1928. For the first nine months of operations net earnings totalled $232,398, an increase of $28,702 over the corresponding period last year.

Given a continuance of this satisfactory lead the showing for the twelve month period should be in excess of $282,987, which was the figure shown for the fiscal year of 1928. After all charges this was equal to $2.95 a share on the common stock of which there are 44,985 shares outstanding.

CATELLI MACARONI

To facilitate and widen its distribution in the export market, Catelli Macaroni Products Corporation has purchased a plant in Vancouver which is already engaged in the manufacture of products similar to those made by the corporation.

Acquisition of the Vancouver property will round out the company's chain of plants which now number

HOLLINGER

Work is continuing on the No. 95 vein at the 2,400 foot level of the Hollinger Consolidated, and sections are reported to show high grade ore across widths up as high as 20 feet. Some sections run as wide as 75 feet with grade about $7-8. Sinking of the winze from 2,750 to 3,950 feet is continuing.

LAKE SHORE

Approximately 500 feet of high grade ore has been opened up on the north vein, west of the shaft, at the 2,000 foot level of the Lake Shore, according to the latest word. This vein has been up for about 1,400 feet on the 1,800 foot level and this horizon gives promise of being the most important yet opened up on the property.

The new steel head-frame for the No. 3 shaft is now being erected. Delivery of the new hoist is expected daily. It is planned to instal a new crusher station at the 2,000 foot level, and the ore from this will be passed to a pocket at 2,150 feet.

ABANA

The vein system west of the main dyke was cut by main crosscuts on the 425 and 550 foot levels of the Abana Mine, during the period from October 16th to 31st, according to the regular report of General Manager H. E. Clement. Underground work was continuous throughout the period.

The crosscut on the 425 foot level was driven 54 feet, passing through the vein and 30 feet into the footwall to mak certain that the vein was fully cut. The east and west sides were then slashed to turn drifts in the vein on the footwall, the east drift advancing 35 feet and the west drift 33 feet. The east face is in an excellent grade of zinc ore and the west face has about 3 feet of high grade zinc ore.

ALDERMAC

Work during the next few months is expected to have an important bearing on the future of the Aldermac Mines, subsidiary of Noranda, Rouyn. Aldermac has indicated a considerable volume of low grade ore which slight enrichment would render commercial. Diamond drilling will be carried out to depth, from a station at the 1,125 foot level and an increase in the value of the ore at depth would add materially to reserves. Shareholders recently authorized an increase in capital from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 shares, and additional funds secured through this financing will be sufficient to enable the company to complete its proposed development program.

MAYLAND OIL

Following an inspection of the company's property in Turner Valley, directors of Mayland Oil have issued a statement to shareholders to refute rumors regarding the condition of Mayland No. 1 well.

According to this statement the well had been drilled to a depth of 5,764 feet into the lime, when the entire drill stem was stuck and twisted off in the hole. A left hand drill stem had to be introduced to reverse the old stem's rotation and back it out. After tedious work all but 1,160 feet has been removed and no obstacles are foreseen to prevent the remainder being removed and drilling re-commenced towards production.

COMING EVENTS CAST SHADOWS

Jake met his old friend Mike in the street one day, and noticed that the latter, whom he had not seen for a long time, looked peaked and worn-out.

"What's the matter, Mike," he asked cordially, "been ill?"

"Nope," replied Mike sadly, and sighing, "it's work that's doing the harm—work from eight in the morning until six at night, with only an hour off for lunch. Just think of it!"

"That's too bad," agreed Jake, consolingly. "How long have you been at it now?"

"I begin Monday," replied Mike gloomily.

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS

"Why didn't you assign me a speaking part in this play?" the sweet young extra demanded of the director of the Yiddish Art Theater.

"My dear miss," the director replied, smiling, "your beauty is so bewitching that I couldn't find words for it."

Presentations Made To Hospital Campaign Workers

Tangible expression of work well done was shown at a dinner given in the Montefiore Club Thursday, November 14, by the executive committee of the Jewish Hospital campaign, which closed September 30.

When the campaign terminated at a dinner in the Mount Royal Hotel, it was the intention to present gifts to approximately 125 men and women, but the enthusiasm that developed when it was announced that nearly $1,600,000 had been raised was such that it was a physical impossibility to distribute all the gifts. At a gathering of about 150 men and women at the dinner Michael Hirsch and Allan Bronfman, joint campaign chairmen, explained that the executive committee desired to express their thanks more fully. It was announced that cups had already been presented to the joint campaign chairmen, Clarence Michaels, Dr. Max Wiseman and Samuel Bronfman. Samuel Bronfman, chairman of the publicity committee received an illuminated address.

He presented walking canes to Rex Vickers, Donald Benson, Isaac Silverstone, Max Finestone and Arthur Levin, a wrist watch to A. C. Iler, a cigar case to George Rotsky, and a silver cigarette case to W. A. Lawrence.

Souvenirs of the campaign were handed to A. H. Jassby, H. M. Ripstein, chairmen of the special names committee and David Kirsch.

Health Service

INDIGESTION

Indigestion is a much-abused term and has no definite meaning. It is a word in general use to describe any uncomfortable feeling which the sufferer attributes to the stomach or some other part of the digestive system. The true condition may be an ulcer of the stomach, inflammation of the gall-bladder, chronic constipation, chronic appendicitis, or some one or other of the many conditions which cause what is popularly known as indigestion.

Unfortunately because indigestion is a common complaint it is very often treated lightly, and the general tendency is for the sufferer to dose himself with laxatives or to try one of the many types of diet which his well-meaning, but medically ignorant friends will offer as a cure. Soda is often taken in large amounts, regularly or frequently, by numbers of persons with the idea that their trouble lies in the presence of too much acid in their stomachs. If digestion is to take place in the stomach, acid must be present, and large doses of soda merely interfere with normal digestion.

In certain cases, bran and roughage in the diet are desirable in order to overcome constipation. If the digestive organs are irritable, it is most likely that a smooth, soft diet is what is required.

These points are mentioned in order to make clear that the proper treatment of indigestion depends, first of all, upon finding out the cause. If this is not done, actual harm results, and the condition tends to become chronic and increasingly difficult to treat.

The whole trouble may be due to bad habits of eating. Eating too quickly, washing down food with fluid instead of chewing it properly, swallowing of air as a result of gulping of food. In such cases, the trouble will be corrected by establishing proper eating habits. If there is inflammation or ulceration of some part of the digestive system, this, of course, requires suitable treatment, and constipation is dealt with by regulation of diet and habits, not by drugs.

Curfew Abolished In All Palestine

Once again, after nearly three months of restriction, the inhabitants of the Holy City are at liberty to roam the streets as late as they please. Beginning November 8, curfew was entirely abolished. On the first day of the riots last summer an order was issued forbidding circulation in the streets after 6:30 p.m. Two months later the time was extended to 11 o'clock, and now the restrictions are lifted altogether. Jerusalem is the last city in Palestine to take this action, Tel Aviv, Jaffa and Haifa having done so sometime ago. Discontinuance of the curfew is most gratifying to the public, since all feel that order is restored and it is safe to go about freely.

The inquiry commission, instead of holding a hearing, visited Jaffa and Tel Aviv, leaving Jerusalem in automobiles at 9 a. m. All along the road to Jaffa, fifty miles from here, they were met by large crowds of Arabs who came from villages along the way to voice protests against the Balfour declaration of the policy making Palestine a national home for the Jews. At Aboughosh, ten miles out of Jerusalem, a crowd of villagers came out on the road headed by their chieftain, who said:

"You may hear that we peasants are not interested in the abolition of the Balfour declaration, but I, on behalf of one of the oldest villages in the country, wish to tell you that this is not so. All Arab peasants in Palestine well know the danger of the Balfour declaration. We strongly protest against it and demand its abolition."

At several points the commission was stopped, and upon arrival at Jaffa, the crowds carried large banners bearing inscriptions "Down With the Balfour Declaration."

Members of the commission silently observed everything that happened, not making any replies except to nod their heads. At Jaffa two members of the commission asked that banners be given to them as souvenirs.

COMMENTARIES

THE QUESTION OF CREMATION

The practice is becoming rather common of having the dead cremated. The question often arises—what is the Jewish attitude regarding this matter? Of course, cremation, while it was not the prevailing custom among Jews in ancient days—it was nevertheless occasionally practiced. Judging from Amos VI, 10—cremation was far from being repugnant to the sentiments of the people. It is also interesting to note that the Rabbi (Orthodox) of Triest, Moses Israel Tedeschi, published a Teshuba in 1890, sanctioning cremation, pointing out that it is not in opposition to the spirit of Judaism and even requested that his body should be cremated at his death. Of course, Jewish opinion is divided on the entire subject—many Orthodox Rabbis are opposed to cremation. The late Professor Deutsch, of the Hebrew Union College, requested in his will that his remains be cremated. Today, the method of disposing of the corpse is a matter of sentiment. Most people still prefer the ancient practice of burial. One thing must be bear in mind, however, that there is nothing inherently un-Jewish in cremation. Judging from the trend of modern civilization, cremation may become rather universal.

HELPING A MAN—WHILE "OUT ON A LIMB"

In the financial world, when a man becomes involved in money difficulties- they speak of him as being "out on a limb". I presume this phrase means to indicate that such an individual hangs on to the tree by virtue of a mere branch and may if not rescued fall to the ground.

During the past few weeks, since the crash in the stock exchange, many have found themselves, not out of their own volition—"on a limb". Many have found themselves about to be "sold out"—if they failed to "cover up". But friends—genuine friends came along and helped them get back on the trees. Such acts of friendship are beautiful indeed! And thrice blessed is the man who helps his fellow-man sustain his standing in a community. The individual who "underwrites" for another in a time of crisis, possesses courage and faith, and certainly unselfishness. Such a one is above the average. Do you know of any such men? I know a few; they are worthwhile to have in a community.

PRAYER IN A MODERN WORLD

I know there are many who look upon ordered ritual as "rigamarole"—something that is a survival of ancient practices of religion.

Yet in truth the set ritual at services is rather psychological and not theological in character. Prayer is a psychological phenomenon. It is part of the life of man—of the best life of man. Some lives never include it, as some lives never include the charm of music. Prayer means a reaching out beyond us or above us. It means aspiration for the higher life. It is a tremendous experience within ourselves. Prayer is instinctive to the heart of man.

Prayer does not mean begging as the English word tends to convey. The Hebrew word for prayer is "Tephilo"—humbling one's self. The Jewish concept of prayer is not so much as asking of God as rather the making of declaration in the presence of God. Man by praying declares his limitations; he, through prayer becomes conscious of the great wonders and miracles by which he is surrounded and of which he is one

THE JEWISH PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

There has reached my desk a volume containing the record of achievements of the local "Folks Shulen". From its contents, I learn of the wonderful strides these schools have made in such brief space of time. I also learn that when the Folkes Shulen were founded some fifteen years ago—they met with strong opposition on the part of the conservative groups in our city. But despite these obstacles, the schools find themselves to-day playing a most important role in the course of Jewish education in Montreal. In many respects these schools have outstripped the achievements of the Talmud Torahs. We wonder why? Certainly. Montreal boasts of a large Orthodox Jewish population—what are these doing in the cause of better Talmud Torahs? The small group of "nationalists" are to be congratulated for having already established four splendid schools.

With much enterprise Maurice Samuel, Zionist lecturer and author, has written a book on "What Happened in Palestine" already available at two dollars from the press of the Stratford Company of Boston. At first glance the book looks like a dedication to the first personal pronoun. It is a mistake to take this for granted, however. Instead, "What Happened in Palestine" is a book worth buying as a description by an eye witness of the events of August, 1929, in the Holy Land. It is vivid and moving, told simply as such a story must be told, and analyzed through the assistance of documents of the British Administration, the Hebrew and Arab press, manifestos and memorials. It is fresh with tension that might have been lost had the writing of the book been postponed yet restrained considering the fact that it would be superhuman to force out from such a book a note of chagrin, resentment, grief and despair. "What Happened in Palestine" is anything but a dry, chronological account. It is full of high adventure by day and night, gripping and soul-stirring.

Mr. Samuel charges Arab pettiness and spite and the consistent incapacity or malevolence of British officials and their lack of imagination with blame in the Wailing Wall troubles and minor events which brought a waiting horror into the open. He presents "incontrovertible material" to show that the Palestine Administration connived to make the Arabs feel that the government was with them adopting a role of agent provocateur. The writer says that among careful, intelligent Jews in Palestine there is a strong impression that neither obtuseness nor simple malevolence explains the Administration attitude but rather the Roman principle: Divide and Rule. It is suspected that British administrators in Palestine do not care for a complete rapprochement between Jews and Arabs. Mr. Samuel claims that the recent massacres could have been avoided easily had the British Administration been eager to avoid them. Within twenty-four hours reach of Jerusalem there was first aid from Egypt and within two days' reach aid from Malta. Statements made in the Hebrew and Arab press are quoted at great length to show that the air was tense for several days before the outbreak in Jerusalem. Mr. Samuel cites the fact that the Jews of Safed and Hebron were known to be the type that knows how to die but not how to fight. They were known to be utterly defenceless but when they implored help they were abandoned. The author says: "For two hours on the morning of Saturday, August 24, there raged in Hebron a scene which it is not easy to parallel even in the mediaeval annals of the Jewish people." There was no police interference. The author describes in detail the maddening "neutrality" of the Administration is considering both Jews and Arabs equally responsible while engaged in "civil war."

Official inquiry into what happened in Palestine is worthless, according to Mr. Samuel, unless the Commission undertaking it goes into the policies of Jews, Arabs and Administration impartially. Basing his opinion exclusively on what happened while he was in Palestine the writer claims that in the British Administration in Palestine the preponderance of power lies with a group opposed to the Mandate which seeks to negate it. He says that with such an Administration it is futile to speak of a Jewish homeland and even futile to hope for the safety of the beginnings of that homeland. It is noteworthy that Mr. Samuel, once a propangandist for the Zionist Organization admits that "for a long time we have heard of the reluctance of the British officials to obey the terms of the Mandate; and of petty and major obstacles, of acts of anti-Jewishness, of perpetual annoyances."

Mr. Samuel's mention of safety in connection with Palestine brings up the subject of self-defence on the part of the Jews. Going thru his book you find numerous references to it. At Tel Aviv where Mr. Samuel lives, and where excitement bordered on hysteria in some cases, he was one of twenty-seven enrolled in such a self-defence group that he, an ex-soldier, had his choice between a broomstick or a kitchen knife. Jewish self-defence was secret but there was the Haganah, or semi-official self-defence. A group of this self-defence rushed out by car from Jerusalem to Motza where massacres took place and kept Arabs at bay until the arrival of a British armored car. Another group was fairly effective at Haifa. At Ber Tuvia Government protection under seal to be used in extreme danger consisted of five rifles. With these guns five young men kept a fierce mob at bay. At Arruf a little handful of Jews held back the Arabs with five rifles and later, carrying the children and the sick, left in darkness and silence and boarded the train just in time as daybreak revealed the Arabs approaching in numbers. Among the Jews was a man Mr. Samuel had met in Poland when the author was investigating pogroms there in 1919! Picture the small colony Hulda: "It lies in the center of the Herzl forest, which comes up to the doors of the buildings. It is surrounded by Arab villages. The nearest railway station is two kilometers away. Hulda is isolated. It depends for its safety on the friendliness of the Arabs and when this fails, on the courage and ability of the colonists." In spite of long friendship with the Arabs they sent to Tel Aviv for help. The next night ten young men got there with great difficulty. The sealed box of rifles placed there by the Government after the riots of 1921 was opened. There were exactly six rifles. But the young men had brought along arms. Without them Hulda would have been wiped out. The greatest losses took place where there was neither a Jewish self-defence nor any help from the police. When the government "looked for plunder and arms in all sections without discrimination" it found arms among the Jews, of course. Had there not been this miserable, insufficient degree of self-defence the fate of Hebron would have been the fate of all cities and colonies, says Mr. Samuel. But the Government treats the possession of arms among marauders and victims as being equally criminal. That there was not greater loss of life is due to friendliness on the part of numerous Arabs (who, by generous and perilous acts, saved the name of their countrymen from complete infamy) and due otherwise to "the grim, intelligent and unflinching Jewish self-defence". Mr. Samuel says: "A full record of the defence would serve no purpose here."

Why not? It might serve to turn the attention of hot Zionists safely ensconced in Canada and other parts of the world toward agitation for organized, legalized, self-defence in Palestine. It is easy to live in Toronto or Montreal or Three Rivers and be vocal about the glories of seeking a "haven" in Palestine where a few score of Jews surrounded by tens of thousands of Arabs must depend often for safety upon a nonchalant Administration, the friendliness of the Arabs and six rifles, if that many. Why is there this criminal silence about the dangers in Palestine? Why not agitation for adequate defence along with agitation on other important Palestinian problems?

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming, and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

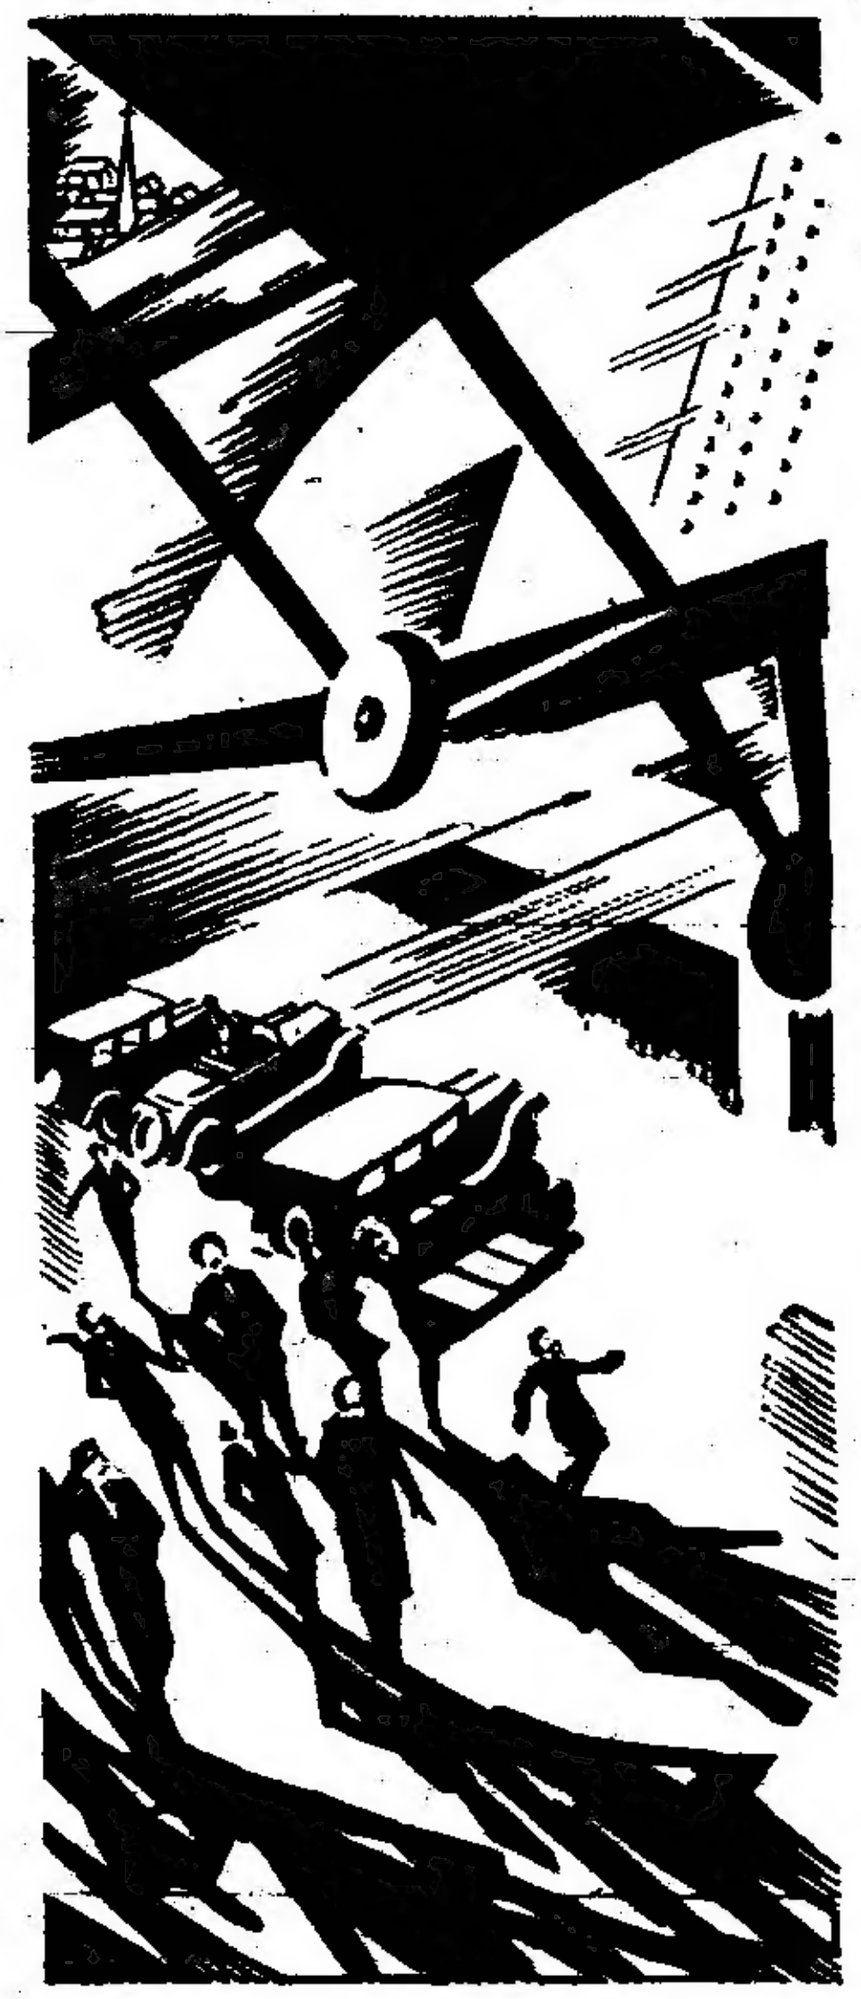
SKYWAYS AND HIGHWAYS



In the sky and on the highways, transportation moves at a faster tempo. The speed records of yesterday are commonplace today.

Greater speed is made possible by better and faster motors which call for a new margin of lubricating safety. Oils that were "good enough" ten years ago won't do today. Marvelube, a pure, carbon free, full-bodied oil made from Peruvian Crude, is the preference of Canadian aircraft operators and motorists.

Over half a million motorists in Canada have proved Marvelube's superior qualities. 90 out of every 100 miles flown by aircraft in Canada are travelled with Imperial Products.

There is a grade of Marvelube refined to meet exactly the specifications of your car, truck or tractor. Consult the Marvelube Chart at Imperial stations and dealers.
